FUN FACTS & PLACES TO GO IN PEMAQUID

Pemaquid Lighthouse was commissioned by the president in 1827 to warn sailors of Maines dangerous rocky coast. In spite of the Lighthouse many shipwrecks have occurred.

The Angel Gabriel sank in a storm off Pemaquid Point in 1635 and has still not been recovered.

The Fishing Schooner George F Edmunds smashed into the point rocks in 1903. During that same storm the schooner Sadie and Lillie also smashed against the rocks with most of the crew perishing.

There have been reports over the years of a ghost in the Pemaquid museum. The sightings of a woman wearing a red shawl, seen by the fireplace of the keeper's house. The entity appears wet and shivering wearing period clothes and seemingly distressed. There is no historical documentation of anyone passing away in the lighthouse, however all the ships wrecks that occurred near the Lighthouse she could have been from one of those or still waiting for a lost love at sea.
